

The Wind

by Steven Gowin

The wind comes up relentless
in the afternoon

Like it does most days in the summer

Hot air rising in the central valley sucks
the cool Pacific air

Through the Golden Gate, and cool fog hurtles in

Later, equilibrium... it all dies down

Again until midday

