

When the Well Runs Dry

by Tim G. Young

what do they mean when the well runs dry the sky begins to cry the wind blows high when there's nothing left on the table and the horse that could have won the race never left the stable when the spinning wheel stops to go round and the world stops spinning such a crazy sound and little jimmy buys a bus ticket but never leaves town and the moon shines on like a silver dollar and coyotes in the desert scream and holler while the murder victim on TV dies in squalor and if there ain't one last chance left to live and there ain't one last dollar left to give and all the heroes have just fell off the cliff then it must all mean something but I don't know what it is

