

Cortizone

by TL Collins

the desire to scream is overwhelming the energy courses through me, like dirty water of melted winter that flows down the gutter the scream, black with the problems of everyday, and this day,
and yesterday,
and tomorrow
and there is no relief, no respite so i slather cortizone on the bite marks of my experiences and hope it can stave off infection

