

Identity

by William Walsh

My twin calls this morning to ask what I'm wearing.

—Seriously?

—I need to know.

We're forty-three. He'll never give it up.

