

A Poem Written About You Because I Missed You

by XXXX

what i will always remember of you is of that singular sunday when a black lock of hair brushed against your cheek as you looked down and closed your eyes because you were exhausted from the night before and i think if i should live a thousand years i shall never be witness again to such overwhelming beauty to such devastating loveliness. . .

