Passing a Church

Does God feel the same way

whenever you practice your indifference toward me

by neglecting appointments, by arriving from New York

without the socks I asked for, by not kissing me?

If he does then I am sorry I am hurting him.

I am sorry I cannot feel love for you the way you feel it for me, Lord.

I've heard the rumors: trumpets so shrill they cause walls to crumble.

Genocide because you were feeling a bit iffy.

A city of homos turned into disco inferno.

You efforts, insofar as I have read them, are noble and brave.

I don't think I'd last that long on a cross.

I'd blast those motherfuckers right down the hill.

"Father, forgive me. I know exactly what I'm doing."
